RE: The urgent cancer backlog crisis, signed by the cancer community and parliamentarians

Dear Prime Minister,

We, the undersigned, as Parliamentarians and representatives of the cancer community, are writing to ask if you will meet with us to discuss the more urgent response needed to tackle the COVID induced cancer backlog. We are gravely concerned that the scale and severity of this backlog is not being accepted and that existing measures to tackle it are not sufficient. As a result, we fear that tens of thousands of cancer patients will be lost unnecessarily. There is widespread frustration that our calls for urgent action are not being heeded and that a range of organisational and technological solutions that could efficiently tackle this crisis continue to be overlooked. There are so very many exciting science and technology solutions which could revolutionise how we deliver cancer care and transform cancer outcomes in the UK both now and in the future.

There can be no doubt that our health and care workers have performed heroically in the face of the challenges posed by the pandemic. And front-line staff continue to go 'above and beyond' in terms of dedication and devotion to their work.

The APPG for Radiotherapy

However, we urge you to accept that the cancer backlog cannot be tackled by existing staff just 'working harder', and by delegating responsibility down to Trusts as appears to be the current thinking.

Rather, it needs a new national plan, driven from Ministerial level and backed by investment in equipment, the workforce and changes to working practices.

You will be aware of Government figures indicating that there are currently at least 40,000 'missing' and undiagnosed cancer patients. Combined with the widespread disruption to the entire cancer pathway which will take years to restore we are facing the most serious crisis in cancer in a generation.

Put starkly, every 4 weeks delay in cancer treatment reduces survival on average by 10%. Clinicians are already reporting that more patients are now presenting with late stage cancers which have passed the point of being curable.

Without urgent action we face a second devastating health crisis as the COVID wards empty and the cancer wards fill.

Your vaccine strategy has shown the world what can be achieved by prioritising a problem, appointing an experienced leader in charge with full responsibility, supported by a team of independent experts in the field, not taking no for an answer and working without being hindered by bureaucracy and with a ring fenced investment budget. Such a strategy and investment for cancer will halt the emerging crisis, ultimately save money, reverse the decline of the last years and be the envy of the world.

We are asking that you meet with us to discuss the recommendations of the joint APPG chair's report: "Catch Up With Cancer- The Way Forward" - informed by a consultation of over 30 medical colleges, charities, clinicians and frontline cancer workers.

We urge you to take on board the recommendations of the report, and:

- Recognise the existence and scale of the COVID induced cancer backlog, the disruption to the whole of the cancer pathways and the exhaustion of staff.

The APPG for Radiotherapy

- Appoint a Minister with responsibility to lead and oversee a national cancer recovery plan and strategy for the future of cancer care. That Minister should:
  - be supported by an independent expert advisory group of professionals.
  - have the power to deliver investment and sweep away bureaucracy to unlock new capacity.
  - have the freedom of action required to develop a new approach to deliver a resilient cancer service which is one of the best of high-income countries, not the worst.
- Deliver the urgently needed ringfenced investment for cancer infrastructure.
- Provide urgent parallel investment in diagnostic equipment to complement the investment we are recommending in treatment, including the £325 million investment in diagnostic infrastructure recommended to us by the Royal College of Radiologists.
- Provide urgent parallel investment in treatment equipment to complement the investment we are recommending in diagnosis; we recommend adopting the APPG for Radiotherapy's 6-point plan to transform radiotherapy as a cost of approximately £850 million over three years.
- Commit to immediate funding for innovative short-term solutions to assist the workforce crisis and commit to at least the 20% increase in the professionals needed to run the service.
- Listen directly to frontline staff and implement "oven ready" technology solutions, data intelligence and sweep away unnecessary bureaucracy.

We urge you to meet with a delegation drawn from our number and work with us to avert a national cancer crisis.

Yours sincerely,

Tim Farron MP, Chair of the APPG for Radiotherapy
